A Bullying Poem

Why, each day,
do you stop and stare,
do you chant those names,
do you pull my hair?

Why, each day,
have you never tried to know the hurt
that I feel inside?

A Bullying Poem

His mind's bombarded by worries,
He's chronically depressed.
He isn't even adult,
and yet he's over stressed.

His confidence is low,
At only the age of nine.
He's been brought down to a wreck,
Who has done this crime?

A Bullying Poem

It's bullies who have done it.
Ruined his self-esteem.
They're making all his self-respect fall apart at the seams.

Human feelings are not things with which people should toy.
So always lend a helping hand,
to people like this boy.
